

Lesson of The Day

2/5 Dialogue: A previous Lesson asked the question, “Are you cold?” This Lesson answers that question.

Speaker 1: Chi hochowa ho? Are you cold?

Speaker 2: A, sv hochowa. Yes, I am cold.

Word Meaning:

chi (che) = you      sv (sah) = I am      a (ahn) = yes

hochowa (hoh-choh-wah) = cold (body temperature)

ho (hohn) = question marker

Question markers o, ho and yo come at the end of a question and the vowel ‘o’ is underlined to show it has a nasalized sound.

Rules to follow for correct usage of question markers.

1. o – follows a word that ends in a consonant.
2. ho – follows a verb.
3. yo – follows descriptive words/adjectives, numbers, etc.

In previous lessons, we learned the Choctaw word for ‘I’ is ‘li’ and is preceded by a verb.

The use of ‘chi’ also means ‘you’ and is in the second person singular form. This usage shows how ‘you – chi’ is affected by an action or adjective.

Ex. Ofi yvt chi haklo tuk. The dog heard you.
Chi chaha. You are tall.
